National Van Lines Selected As Top Workplace

Broadview, IL – The Chicago Tribune’s Top 100 Workplaces issue has honored National Van Lines in the Small Business (less than 250 employees) category. Employees and vendors in Chicagoland nominated 1362 companies for this workplace evaluation. Of those nominated, 182 organizations successfully completed the survey. The top 100 were classified into “size bands” and ranked separately, because smaller employers tend to score higher than mid-size (250-999 employees); and mid-size employers score higher than large employers (1000 or more employees). National Van Lines was ranked 45th.

According to the Tribune’s editorial staff, the lessons learned from the Workplace Survey are important. A satisfied workforce, particularly during unsettling economic times, is more productive, more engaged, more flexible and potentially more profitable. Successful companies breed happier workers.

Other important conclusions from the study include: Employees value the feeling of being trusted to do their jobs well, whether that’s reflected by a light-hearted corporate culture or a message that everyone is part of a team. They value training, open communication and the chance to grow in their jobs. And happy workers are loyal employees.

CEO Maureen Beal, in thanking the employees for completing the survey and their positive responses, stated, “We are so proud of our employee family and an honor like this means so much more because it is based on their opinions and evaluations. We will continue to do our best to deserve this honor.”
